

THE RUTLAND HERALD.

THE RUTLAND HERALD—EXTRA; OR,
AN ANTIDOTE FOR THE POISON.

The Globe and other kindred prints, in order to keep up the Jackson and Van Buren storm, during the ensuing Presidential campaign, are issuing their Extras, by tens, hundreds, and by thousands with a view to flood this State with humbug, frauds, lies and other impositions, to save the little New York Dutchman from defeat.

Hence, in order to attempt to administer a ready and effectual antidote to this abominable and fatal poison, the Editor of the Herald proposes to supply any orders for extra numbers of his paper for 6 months, to commence any time in the month of June, for Fifty Cents, payable in advance—Therefore, all orders for the Herald for that length of time will be promptly attended to after one week's notice, when accompanied with advance pay.

The friends to the glorious cause of the Whigs in all the towns, parishes and neighborhoods, within in the political circulation of the Herald, will, it is to be hoped, take early and prompt measures to carry our plan into operation, and diffuse every where the proposed antidote to counteract the poison.

Herald Office, May 31, 1836.

BY THE LAST EVENING'S MAILS, we received N. York papers of Saturday and Washington of Friday.—

Nothing later from Texas than before received, or from our scattered forces in Florida.

The political confirmation of the Texian news, (the astonishing capture of the chief of the Mexican army, by Gen. Houston,) has created some excitement in Congress, and there is a loud call from some of the more inconsiderate members to recognize, forthwith, the Independence of this apparently recently conquered country. Otherwise the Congressional proceedings are without much general interest.

Resolved., That we nominate the Hon. Thomas D. Hammond, of Orwell; the Hon. Zimri Howe, of Castleton; and Marvel Johnson, Esq. of Mt. Holly, as candidates for the office of Senators, for the county of Rutland for the year ensuing, which was unanimously adopted by the convention.

The committee on resolution, reported the following resolutions, to wit:

Resolved., That the sentiments of Antimasons with regard to all the great questions of National policy, have been so frequently and fully expressed, and are so well understood as to render it unnecessary here to repeat them.

Resolved., That the Hon. COMMOTION AMONG THE CREEKS.

The aforesaid letters, owing to the source of them giving many alarming signs of the hostility developing itself among the Creeks, than any thing else we have seen. It is distressing to think of the suffering and waste of human life which will certainly follow, if the Creeks are faithless and mad enough to engage in hostilities against their white neighbors.—

COLUMBUS, 10th May, 1836.

"It is with feelings of deep sympathy that I address you. Our Alabama neighbors are now pouring into this city with the greatest possible precipitation. Several men, women and children are murdered on the road, in making for this place.—Small children are picked up, wandering in the forest, not able to tell who their parents were.—Such a state of misery and distress I never before witnessed. Nothing, as yet, has been done by the Alabama Military. The Indians are going from one plantation to another, destroying every thing that they cannot convert to their use. The head chief has waited on by some of our citizens to know the intention of the Indians; and he stated, unequivocally, they were determined on war; and that he could not prevent it; and for us to be on our guard. It is somewhat feared our city will be attacked by them. At this moment we are poorly provided for defense, but hope to be in a few days. All those fine farms which a few days ago promised so much reward to the owners are deserted; the fences thrown down, the inmates of the houses either killed or run away, their present now nothing but a desolate waste. The lime has now arrived
